

ENGINEERING

Students apply engineering research principles as they design and construct solutions to engineering problems, using computer simulations and models.

